VERMONT ATHLETIC NOTES.

Allen Reid of Barre has been by long odds the best groundgainer on the Norwich varsity this fall. He made two Saturday and one against Vermont at Intercity part earlier.

The university of Vermont foot ball eleven has played three tie games this season, one with Amherst college being 0 to 0, another with Massachusetts state 6 to 6 and the third with Williams, 0 to 0, last Saturday.

Larry Gardner, the university of Vermont boy, ranked second in batting in the New England league, havinng an average of 305. He had a fielding average of 908. The Vermont varsity will feel his loss next spring since h will not be able to play although still in college. Ray Colins, the star twirler, is captain for next spring at Ver-mont, and the indications look like an extra strong aggregation. There is quite a lot of material in the freshman class as developed by the fall practice. Earl Fuller, the captain of the Vermont academy foot ball team this fall, is the son of the Rev. E. M. Fuller, formerly pastor of the Baptist church in Barre and more recently state Sunday school field secretary.

Burlington high school is the best prep. school team in northern Vermont, but ought to tackle some of the southern teams before claiming the state championship. Middlebury college has had an unsue cessful season on the gridiron this fall. Clemns, formerly of Barre-Montpelier, batted for 288 with Lynn in the New England league last summer. He is at Burlington. his home in Hardwick now but expects to return to Lynn another season to play ball. He more than made good in he New England league. round in shape to make the Dean base ball team easily. Dutton, also a God-dard man, has played on the school teams in the backfield this season. Ed. Reulbach, formerly with Barre-Montpelier, lead the National league pitchers this season with a percentage of 774, being followed by Christy Mathewson of New York and Three-fingered Brown of Chicago.
